

Chongqing City Guide

---- Presented by Maxxelli Real Estate

The towering mountains and verdant valleys in West China have been witness to three thousand years of civilization in Chongqing. In the long river of history, the city, with its tremendous power of cohesion and influence upon its neighboring areas, became a regional military and political center, as well as a distribution center for commodities. Chongqing has been a flourishing city for over a thousand years. In the last hundred years the city grew with its commerce, flourished with the moving in of political and industrial establishments from the coastal areas of east China, and achieved economic take-off through reform.

As a result, the city of Chongqing has changed from an ancient military strategic pass into a city open to the outside world, which holds a strategic position connecting the central and western parts of China from the upper reaches of the Yangtze River. Chongqing has changed from a city of entrepot trade of the 19th century into the largest multi-functional modern industrial and commercial city in West

China grew from a port city in the east part of Sichuan basin into a municipality directly under the central government that stands in the hinterland of China. The rapid rise of Chongqing in western China, with its glorious past and drastically changing future, has left its mark in the history of development of China and become the center of focus of world attention.

At the turn of the century, Chongqing is again placed by history at the starting line for a new race. The construction of the Three Gorges Dam and the resettlement of a large number of residents for the purpose of new development of the city; the establishment of the new municipality directly under the central government has opened up a new horizon for the city's development. Chongqing today, with its advantages in its geographical, cultural and social environment, is becoming an irresistible attraction by showcasing its greatness and charms to the outside world.

Geographic Situation

Chongqing is located at the upper reaches of the Yangtze River, at 105°11'-110°11' east longitude and 28°10'- 32°13' north latitude. It is 470 kilometers from east to west and 450 kilometers from north to south. Chongqing neighbors Hubei and Hunan in the east, and Guizhou in the south, it neighbors Sichuan in the west and Shanxi in the north. The terrain slopes down to the Yangtze River valley from south to north, and is therefore quite undulating. In the northwest and central parts are mainly hills. Chongqing's eastern is lower than the western, lots of hills in the northwest and middle area, with Daba Mountain and Wuling Mountain to the southeast. The main rivers are Yangtze River, Jialing River, Wu River, Fu River and Qi River

Shopping

Although Chongqing Municipality is not as modern as Beijing or Shanghai, it still provides a superior shopping environment for locals and tourists alike. Rich in natural resources, Chongqing produces a great variety of local and special products including valuable traditional Chinese medicinal herbs and famous fruit, such as pears, navel oranges, pomeloes, and persimmons. Chongqing is noted for fine quality teas as well--among the most widely known are Chongqing Tuo Tea, Yinping Silver Needle Tea and Xinong Fur Tip Tea.

Clothing

Jiefangbei is the central business district of the urban city and the center of economic development of Chongqing Municipality. The Jiefangbei commercial Pedestrian Street centers this well-known shopping area. Clusters of modern shopping malls and exclusive shops line the roadsides. Banks, theatres, KTV clubs, bookstores, hotels, bars and pubs are also quite easy to find. Some of the main buildings worth seeing include Chongqing Department Store, New Century Department Store, Commercial Mansion, Friendship Shopping Center, Carrefour Supermarket and New Oriental Women Plaza.

The Chaotianmen Market, located on East Jiefang Road, is the biggest market in Chongqing. Dealing primarily in Garment wholesale, it is reported that goods traded in the market come from or are sold to more than 200 counties in Sichuan, Hubei and Hunan provinces. Shoppers can expect to find stylish clothes and very reasonable prices. Still, bargaining with the vendors in most stalls and shops will ensure a great deal!

The Three Gorges Square. This massive shopping plaza is located at the heart of Shapingba district. The square has a man-made river running through it and accompanying sculptures meant to represent the Yangtze and all the stops along the way to the Three Gorges. With Chongqing University, Chongqing Normal University, Sichuan

International Studies University, and Southwest Politics and Law University all located nearby; this shopping plaza primarily caters to college students. There are hundreds of shops that sell trendy clothes and shoes to the young adults who are still living off mom and dad. Among some of the bigger brand names you can find here are Baleno, Metersbonwe, and Yishion.

Below are some of the department stores that have branches in Three Gorges Plaza. In general all the department stores have a grocery section in the basement level. People do not bargain at the department stores, so you have to just look out for promotions.

Art

Folk culture and traditional Chinese art compliment the modern offerings of Chongqing. Since the Southern Song Dynasty, Shu embroideries have been cited as one of the most famous embroideries in China and Chongqing's elaborate folding paper fans have been exported to foreign countries since the Qing Dynasty. The many various kinds of bamboo articles, brocade of Tujia minority and ink slabs from the Three Gorges also reflect the flavor of the local culture.
